About half of the funds needed to repair the wagon road between Santa Fe and Bland were subscribed by the merchants of this city yesterday and the New Mexican has no doubt that the en-

Tax dodgers and men who do not deire to be taxed are making considerable noise in asserting that there are no titles to real property in this city and that real estate should not be assessed. This is the merest balderdash and gotten up by a few fellows who know nothing of law, but think they are great at legal quibbles. If this class of men will not make tax returns, the assessor has the most ample power under the law to make such and to assess a penalty of 25 per cent. The assessor should do his duty regardless of street talk.

The city schools closed today for an indefinite period on account of a lack of the necestary funds to pay teachers and other running expenses. This is not only discreditable but highly injurious only discreditable but highly injurious to Santa Fe, particularly just at a time when many people from the outside are looking to this city as the most desirable residence place convenient to the great Cochiti and south Santa Fe county gold mines, and the New Mexican earnestly hopes that efficient measures will immediately be taken to re-establish the schools under modern methods and proper management. The first question that the most desirable class of homeseekers ask is, "What kind of public schools do you maintain?" The people of Santa Fe should be able promptly answer this important question with something more satisfactory than a dubious shake of the head.
